Memories of a young girl

Anne Frank, the young Jewish girl who hid with her family for two years from the Nazis during the German occupation of the Netherlands in WWII, has touched many who have read her now world-famous diary. Friends found the journal after the family's capture, while searching their hiding place – a tiny annexe in Amsterdam (now a museum) – for anything the Gestapo had left behind. It was given to Anne's father, Otto, the only surviving member of the Frank family, who ensured The Diary of a Young Girl was published soon after the war in 1947. The book was initially published in Dutch, then French and German, with the English version printed in 1951. The diary, now regarded as one of the classic works of war literature, has since been translated into over 60 languages and has sold more than 31 million copies, making it the most widely-read work on the Holocaust. The irony is that Anne admitted she wanted to be a journalist and a famous writer, and talks about her plans to write a book about the secret annexe, for which her diary would come in handy. Precocious in style and insight, Anne's words included, 'In spite of everything I still believe that people are really good at heart,' which is perhaps one of the most telling comments on her character. Coinciding with what would have been Anne's 72nd birthday, The History Channel commemorates the anniversary with Biography: Anne Frank, on what has been decreed Anne Frank Day.

Fellini: the Roma warrior

Federico Fellini's Roma is an episodic, free-form celebration of the Eternal City in which the revered Italian director acts as our guide. On a tour of 'his' Rome, the viewer is shuttled back and forth in time between a series of typically bawdy reminiscences of his youth during WWII, and the film's present, where he and his crew are being tailed and pestered by a posse of eager German students. While it may not be as warmly accessible as the equally earthy Amarcord, Fellini's 1973 Oscar-winning love letter to his hometown of Rimini, Roma still scores with its outrageous humour. Among the memorably scabrous set-pieces are the Monty Pythonesque ecumenical fashion show skit, and a riotous music hall scene in which a gang of string-vested peasants hurl a dead cat at a pint-sized Fred Astaire impersonator. The film is playing as part of Carlton Cinema's World Cinema season, which also features director Patrice Chéreau's visually elegant La Reine Margot.

The horror ... the horror

Who better to host an A to Z of horror than cult scare supremo Clive Barker, whose chilling novels and films, such as The Hellbound Heart and its movie adaptation Hellraiser, have been responsible for untold nightmares? Among the highlights of Friday's edition of this well-researched series is a look at one of the most pungent tales of cinematic terror, George A Romero's bleak black-and-white masterpiece Night of the Living Dead, and a celebration of 'king of the B-movies' Roger Corman.

The two teams' last meeting at The Boulevard in March ended in an 18-18 draw. The home team fell behind early on in that match, but their Australian star Deon Bird (far right in picture) inspired a comeback with a first-half try. Both sides - who are coached by Shaun McRae and Stuart Raper respectively - have exceeded expectations this season, so this evening's contest should prove to be an exciting one and the result could be a close one. |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | PLAYBOY TV/ ADULT CHANNEL ADD-ON CHANNEL10.00pm Freeview 10.05Night Calls UK: Live 11.40Sex Court 1A 12midnightFreeview 12.10am SXTV:Live 1.00 Freeview 1.05Panties 1.30 Fantasies 1.50Sam Gets it All 2.10 FILM:Rockie's Hardbodies 3.20Adult Feature 3.35-4.00amBeautiesAdult Nightview is now available as a TV on-demand service between 10.00pm and 4.00am at £4.95. ## LIVE NATWEST SERIES - ENGLAND V AUSTRALIA SKY SPORTS 1 10.30AM, 2.45PM

The NatWest Series - a 10-match triangular one-day competition involving England, Australia and Pakistan - enters its second day, with the hosts taking on the world's top team in Bristol. England captain Nasser Hussain will be hoping that his batsmen, including Alec Stewart (pictured, left), can find the form that gave them a historic Test victory in Pakistan at the end of last year. However, they may have a battle against today's opponents, who boast world-class all-rounders such as Mark Waugh (pictured, right).

LIVE ATHLETICS: IAAF GRAND PRIX I IN ATHENS BRITISH EUROSPORT 6.00PM

The IAAF circuit comes to Athens - the venue for the 2004 Olympic Games - for the sixth of ten Grand Prix I meetings of the 2001 series. Held at the Olympic Stadium with a capacity of 80,000 spectators, the Athens meeting started in 1963 and this year will feature a host of world stars, including the Olympic 100 metres champion, American Maurice Greene (foreground in picture). Greene set the world record of 9.79 seconds in the Greek capital in 1999, so he will have plenty of confidence going into the event.

Get Voting!

THE fates of the hottest stars are in your hands thanks to the Disney Channel Kids Awards, dedicated to who and what matters to YOU.

S Club 7, nominated for two awards, told Cable Guide about their nail-biting wait for the final awards show, a star-studded event that takes place in September and will include international artists such as NSync.

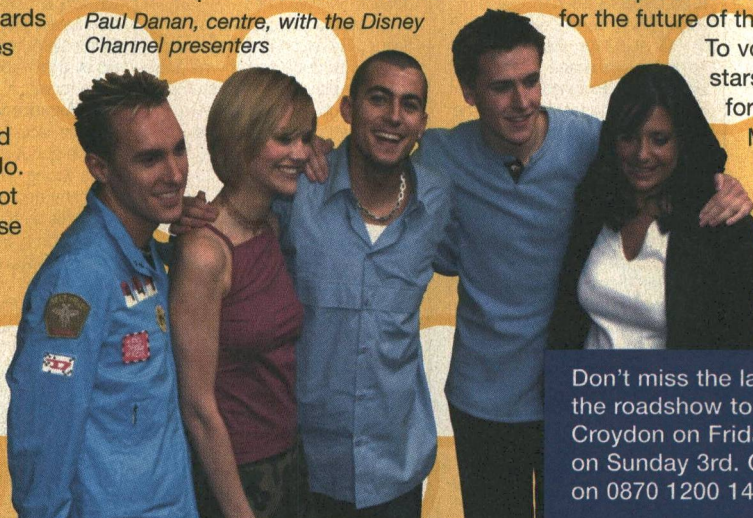

'We're keeping our fingers crossed and are hoping for the best,' says Jo.

But win or lose, the awards have got S Club 7's vote. 'They're great because only children can vote, and we want to hear their voices, because they're the ones who are buying our music,' says Hannah.

[up for best soap] I'm probably going to be involved in more adult shows,' he tells us, 'so the roadshows are a great way of keeping in touch with the kids.'

There will be soccer and cricket schools during July and August, where you can pick up tips from ex-England football captain Alan Shearer and Paul Danan, centre, with the Disney Channel presenters

England cricket captain Nasser Hussain.

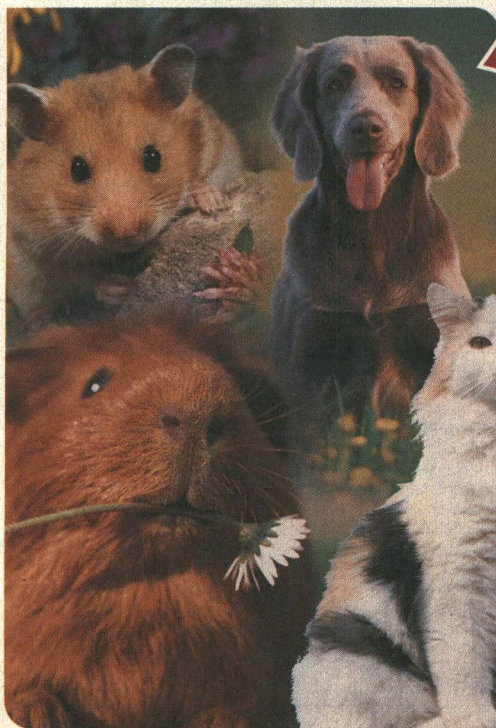

Nasser, who has been nominated for best sports star, insists on making time for the cricket school. 'I want to give something back to my younger fans who have shown me so much support,' he says. 'And encouraging youngsters to take up cricket can only be beneficial for the future of the sport.'

To vote for your favourite stars, just fill in a special form available in McDonald's, Disney Stores or at the Disney website - www.disneychannel.co.uk. So, what are you waiting for?!

It's one of the top pre-Wimbledon warm-up events and so is guaranteed a class field. Last year, the Australian Lleyton Hewitt took the tournament by storm, beating Pete Sampras in the final. Tim Henman (pictured) is likely to be the leading home challenger in this event, which has just under £547,000 in total prize money and a winner's share of over £62,000. |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | PLAYBOY TV/ ADULT CHANNELADD-ON CHANNEL10.00pm Freeview 10.05 Night Calls UK 11.40 Ecstasy 9 12midnight Freeview 12.10am The Exhibitionists 12.30 Double O Heaven 1.00 Freeview 1.05 FILM: Memories of Alice 2.15 Smoking Ladies 2.40 Lady Lust 3.05-4.00am A-Z Lesbian LustAdult Nightview is now available as a TV on-demand service between 10.00pm and 4.00am at £4.95. ## LPGA GOLF: WEGMANS ROCHESTER INTERNATIONAL SKY SPORTS 2 11.00AM, SKY SPORTS 1 3.00PM

Meg Mallon (pictured) returns to the Locust Hill Country Club in Pittsford, New York, to defend her Wegmans Rochester International title. Mallon finished on an eight-under-par 280, two strokes ahead of her nearest rival, Wendy Doolan, to clinch the $150,000 first prize. The feat was made all the more remarkable by the fact that players had to contend with a final-holes downpour during which Mallon sank five birdies to come from behind. A tournament purse of $1m should attract the top players on the LPGA Tour.
